Manager's Comment

For January 2023, the Fund's NAV/unit increased by 5.43%, outperforming FBM EMAS gain of 1.07%. The outperformance was mainly due to the Fund's overweight position in the energy and industrial sectors.

Global equities started strong this year, with both Developed and Emerging Markets posting positive returns in January 2023. The DXY index dropped from 103.52 in December to 102.10 in January, while the US 10-year Treasury yield decreased from 3.87% in December to 3.51% as at end January.

The FBM KLCI fell 0.7% MoM in January. Following Bank Negara's unexpected decision to pause the overnight policy rate (OPR) in its 19 January meeting, the FBM KLCI index gained. By the end of the month, the FBM KLCI index went into the red most likely due to profit taking activities especially foreign investors, who were net sellers for the month. The best performing sectors were energy, transport and technology while the worst performing sectors were healthcare, plantation and finance.

Foreign investors were net sellers for the 5th consecutive month at RM201 million in January 2023 versus a net sell of RM1.4 billion in December 2022. Local institutional investors were net buyers in January 2023 at RM916 million versus a net buy of RM1.7 billion in December 2022.

While we are cautious of a potential slowdown in the global economy, a pause in the Fed's monetary tightening policy would provide support to markets. China's reopening would also provide positive spill-over to Asian equities, including Malaysia.
